New York Stock Market SALES

NEW YORK, June 18 .- The contest between opposing factors in the stock market to-day was quite lively while between opposing factors in the stock market to-day was quite lively while it lasted, but was over in the course of the first hour of the trading. The forces supporting prices against further fail established control in that time, but having done so seemed disposed to discontinue operations. The midday dealings were almost negligible, so small were they in amount and so narrow were the fluctuations in prices which they caused.

The prevailing sentiment among the professional element of the traders was bearish, based on the unsatisfactory action of the market when it ralled yesterday. This element was intumidated from attacking prices by the resistance encountered in the first hours selling, but it argued unfavorably from the extreme duliness or the trading on rallies. The disinclination to follow the advance with buying which was inferred from inaction did not beget much confidence.

The list of successive departures from the innancial district of persons of influence in that world is taken as part explanation of the duminished activity of the market. It is surmised that some of the heavy selling this week has been in preparation for such departures by the closing up of outstanding speculative accounts in stocks.

The opposition to the tactics of the bears which was asserted at the outset of the heavy selling this week has been in preparation for such departures by the closing up of outstanding speculative accounts in stocks.

The opposition to the tactics of the bears which was asserted at the outset to day reflected the determination of banking interests to protect the market against raiding, and imparted confidence to holders of stocks in some degree, as was shown by the cessation or the pressure of liquidation.

News bearing on values was not important. There was a good deal of

in some degree, as was shown by the cessation of the pressure of liquidation.

News bearing on values was not important. There was a good deal of discussion among inanciers, and their legal advisers of the possible scope of the suggestions contained in President Taft's special message on the opportunity to extend the government's power to investigate corporation accounts under the provisions of the proposed law to tax net earnings of corporations. The project is generally considered of far-reaching importance, and some observers assert that a large amount of selling of stocks has been induced since the message appeared.

The Paris listing project for United States Steel has by no means passed out of the discussion, and the course of the French opposition to it is regarded as having some political, as well as financial, import. The British request for the withdrawal of the United States government's request for participation by American bankers in the Chinese loan is in line with a supposition that the project against the United States Steel project is in the nature of a retailation against American bankers for the Chinese matter.

Opposition of French industry to
